

Remembrance DAY

11 NOVEMBER 2018

At 11 am on 11 November 1918 the Great War came to an end. More than 60,000 Australians were among the millions who had lost their lives. Since then, Australian men and women have continued to risk their lives serving in our defence forces. Photographs of one hundred women who have served during the past century have been combined to create this portrait of Sister Rachael Pratt, who served in the Gallipoli campaign and was later awarded a Military Medal for bravery during her service on the Western Front in France.
